Eramboo's Vision and Purpose

Eramboo has been a haven for creativity for decades. The Garigal people developed a rich and complex culture thousands of years ago at the heart of which was their connection to the land. On this same site, Australia's Socialist Party once had its headquarters, and the building also belonged to Sydney's most forward-thinking educators at the former Independent School. Under the tutelage of Bill Eason, the school's three rules were freedom, tolerance and self-discipline. In 1996, Eramboo Artist Environment was established by Greg Stonehouse and Susan Milne as an education and environment facility for artists, continuing the place's connection to free thinking and creativity.

Eramboo's focus upon artists, their creative process and their connection to community in the bush environment is a continuation of Bill Eason's vision for creative education and the nurturing of the human spirit.

In 2009 a long-term artist residency program was launched, and in 2012 new studios were built to expand this program with a major grant from ArtsNSW.

Eramboo is proud to have been continuing the creative legacy of this site for the past 22 years.

Our Goal

Eramboo sees a vibrant, alive community accessible to all: respecting history, reflecting the present, contemplating the future through art and cultural activities.

Eramboo's goal is to deeply explore the nature of the Australian cultural voice. This mission is undertaken with visionary Artistic Direction and diverse, challenging programming. To this end

Eramboo's programs engage professional and emerging artists and the broader community.

Key Achievements for the Year

Programming

Exhibitions

Throughout 2018 the ongoing meetings for Creative Art Exchange group has built a bedrock of artists interested in connecting with Eramboo by participating in exhibitions, master classes and talks. A series of three exhibitions around the idea of consumerism and the environment titled 'Constant Craving – Buy me I'll Change Your Life' was staged from April to July 2018. This series of exhibitions resulted from a call-out to artists and attracted two interstate artists to the show. The theme reinforced Eramboo's overall mission to investigate connections between creativity, science and the environment. The three shows utilised the professional exhibition space and increased the sense of collegiality between artists who were part of the curatorial discussions and installation.

In 2018 Eramboo was the site of two Pittwater Artist Trail exhibitions held in March and October bringing resident artists and the local arts community together. This year we included some pop up studio exhibitions in our teaching spaces as well.

Classes

There were also ongoing classes held by Yvonne Cleaver and her painting group who have made their home at Eramboo. We participated in Craft Week holding a Master class with Sue Pedley called 'Raw' an experimental textile dyeing workshop.

Residencies

The ongoing Northern Beaches Council funded residency program selected ceramicist Michelle Perrett to occupy Eramboo's Studio for 2018. She was an outstanding candidate and used her time and the professional exhibition extremely well.

The forming of a partnership with the Australian Decorative & Fine Arts Society (Ku-ring-gai) Inc. or ADFAS to initiate an emerging artist in residence at Eramboo was a new venture and will lead hopefully to more opportunities to further develop community connections.

Support from Northern Beaches Council was increased with the awarding of a Community Cultural Grant for a professional development program in Art Month, March 2019, 'Back Yourself as an Artist'.

Individual artists are being encouraged to apply for solo and group exhibitions on an ongoing basis and key practitioners invited to give lectures in our master classes and Creative Art Exchange group meetings for 2019.

Due to the driveway construction at the end of October/November, the programming was compressed into Sept and Oct and made for a very busy end to 2018.

Marketing and Fundraising

Marketing of Eramboo in 2018 has focused on brand values and brand promise. A new website was designed and developed to showcase Eramboo in a more contemporary light and a strategy is being devised for acquiring donors and donations to help consolidate the future of Eramboo. Activities continue to be developed that build the profile of this unique "sanctuary for artists in the middle of the bush".

As we move into 2019, specific tactics to be agreed include PR/Publicity, collaborations with established brands, appointing high profile Ambassadors, collecting data of visitors, artists and other stakeholders, and formulating a communications plan and Social Marketing. Recent discussions point towards events at Eramboo playing a more central role in future marketing events. It's believed that holding/creating the right events could make a big splash in terms of recognition within and without the local and wider Arts Community and simultaneously help acquire 'patrons'/donors and generate income. The first example of this, in March 2019, will be four Sunday afternoon "collaborations" between musicians and artists.

Infrastructure

Eramboo's driveway is almost completed with an all-weather bitumen surface and upgraded drains due to work directed by the Council Administrator and undertaken by Council's internal works department. This driveway will enable an expanded art program with good school student access off the main road. The driveway is a looped road which allows two approaches to the facilities.

A working bee earlier in the year achieved a good cleaning result and grounds upkeep which has survived the winter and spring. This communal morning also gave more opportunities for the local Eramboo community to gather and discuss issues in an informal way.

Finances

We plan to generate sufficient revenue through studio rentals to support part time administrative staff. All other functions, including programming, project design and implementation, artistic direction, marketing and sponsorship are conducted voluntarily.

This financial year we operated at a net loss of $6,485.

Staffing

Eramboo's Arts Officer Suzanne Davey took up her appointment in October 2017. An experienced artist, Suzanne works principally in sculpture, installation and public art, and has exhibited widely in gallery, public and natural spaces since 2012. Her professional background includes arts administration, public programs, education, community arts and design. Throughout her career she has presented numerous arts workshops to adults and children, sharing her passion for the creative arts. She is involved with arts organisations such as the contemporary textile collective, Seed Stitch, Eramboo Artist Environment, an art critique group and co-ordinates the Tramshed Potters Club.

Ambassadors

In March 2016 the Board established Eramboo's Ambassador Program. Eramboo Ambassadors are people of considerable personal and professional distinction in areas relevant to Eramboo's work and to help Eramboo win recognition, support and goodwill for the organisation and its work. They also provide advice to the Artistic Directors and the Board in their area of professional distinction. Sue Boaden was appointed Eramboo's inaugural Ambassador this year. A long term resident of the Northern Beaches, Sue is a leading cultural strategist.

Key Partnerships

Eramboo has received grant funding from the Northern Beaches Council for community and cultural development as well as funds to upgrade the driveway.

The NSW Department Industry/Land and Water Division has waived Eramboo's $43,878 loan for the amenity block received in 2007. The investment in Eramboo by Council and the state government reflects Eramboo's status in the cultural landscape. Eramboo thanks Council's ongoing and long term investment in its cultural programming and infrastructure and hopes that this reciprocal relationship grows.

Eramboo continues to enjoy mutually rewarding partnerships and support with the following organisations and businesses:

- Enliven Pittwater, Northern Beaches Council;
